THE TRUTH TOLD

Mrs. Gurley, Now in Prison, Gives the Correct Version of Annie Redmond's Abduction.

the Confession-A Thrilling and Interesting Story.

One of the most sensational cases of an abduction of a child since the days of Charley Ross was that of little Annie Redmond about a year ago, and which finally resulted in driving the father insane. The fact in the case were made public Wednesday for the first time. Mrs. Josie Gurley, who was convicted of abducting the little one and sentenced to Joliet prison for five years for the crime, has made a confesison, which she claims is the only true story. Mrs. Gurley had just been informed Harvey Gurley's incarceration for bigamy, and her anger against Gurley, to save whom from the prison she had perjured herself, she said, led to the confession. Her story in brief is as follows: Prior to the abduction a friend of Harvey Gurley named Dick Ryan, Gurley, Mrs. Parsons and Annie Allen were in connection with a man named McGee of Toledo, Ohio, get-ting up a theatrical company. McGee wrote them that to complete the company they must procure a bright little girl who could learn to sing and dance Acting upon this Ryan planned the abduction of the Redmond child. Apple Allen was not an actives. for her aid in stealing the child. Gurley was promised $100 by Ryan for his services in committing the crime. On the day of the anduction the child came to play about 10 o clock and was soon enticed away by Annie Allen, who was met further down the street by Gurley and Mrs. Parsons. Here a carriage was in waiting and all four entered and were driven to the home of Mrs. Parsons. In the meantime the child had been rendered almost unconscious from the effects of eating drugged candy. Two days later the child was brought to Mrs. Gurley's home on State

While there a man came along who saw the child and exciaimed: 'That is Anna Redmond.' Mr. Parsons pushed the child into the house and shut the door and then, turning to the man said with a langh. 'You are mistaken. he discussed the vital points of this camman, said with a laugh, 'You are mistaken, that is my son's little daughter.' The mo-ment he had passed on Mrs. Parsons flew at that place. Mr. Middleton addressed a large and en nto a terrible rage and bundled me of none with the child. I was so flustered and scared at what I had heard and the thusiastic audience at the court house here to-night on the topics of the day, drawing thought that I had been keeping the lost child that all the papers were talking about 'hat I hardly knew what to do.
